Call state offices Downtown asset

A proposed state office building at 1820 Cleveland Blvd. has drawn support as an asset to the Downtown area.

Those hopeful of seeing the structure built are critical of a move by State Rep. Horace Calvo to obtain an investigation by the Legislative Investigation Commission.

He indicated he will consider asking for tabling of the investigation resolution he introduced Jan. 29 in the Illinois House.

As disclosed by the Press-Record Jan. 10, a new building would be erected on a First Granite City Savings and Loan Association parking lot to house offices of the Illinois State Employment Service and the Division of Unemployment Compensation.

Ground was to be broken for a 5,000-square-foot structure as soon as weather permits.

Temporary office facilities at 1920 Edison Ave. have been rented from Thurl Jones during the planning of the new building; the two offices previously were at 2050 Iowa St., now converted to another use.

A long-term lease for state use of the proposed building was signed with Three-Square Construction Corp., Granite City, by Roland W. Burris Dec. 17. Burris is director of the Illinois Department of General Services.

The new structure is to be assigned to the Illinois Department of Labor to provide space for the employment and unemployment staffs.

Workers in the offices range in number from 12 to 20 and parking spaces for them and visitors are to be provided on the 110-foot lot, which First Granite City Savings is willing to sell to Three-Square.

The construction firm, formed Nov. 14, is represented by Attorney Phillip A. Theis, who signed the lease with the state. The Three-Square incorporator is listed as Eugene Johnson, 2158 Cleveland Blvd.

Johnson is president of Douglas Contracting Co. of the Cleveland address.

The agreement calls for $1,647 monthly rent for 84 months—a total of $138,348—after occupancy of the proposed building set for early May. A current lease at $750 monthly expires April 30. Burris said Saturday that Three-Square will not be paid until a building is provided. He added that an advance lease is common practice.

Rep. Calvo took exception to the proposal, saying that the procedure perhaps should be corrected by legislation, with the matter also turned over to a law enforcement agency. That reaction is now drawing fire as an apparent attempt to block the state office building project.

Route 203 still far from ready

Whether a year is long enough for the Watergate investigation was a question raised in the annual "State of the Union" address last week.

Whether a substantially longer period of time than that is appropriate for reconstruction of Illinois Route 203 is an issue Quad-Cityans are pondering.

The contract to build a four-lane divided highway between Nameoki-Pontoon roads and Interstate 270 was awarded in October 1972. Now, 16 months later, the task remains far from accomplished.

A meeting to discuss the pace of the work has been scheduled for Friday by state and local officials, businesses and parents, it was announced today.

When contacted at Springfield by the Press-Record, Harry Rimbey said work is to be resumed but declined to speculate on the date. He is president of Calhoun County Contracting Co., the contractor awarded the $3,796,127 contract. Rimbey attributed the delay to "so much bad weather from the very beginning."

"Everything is geared to go as soon as the weather breaks," he commented.

The same afternoon he was reached, Friday, was chosen for a camera visit to the highway site. Only activity noted on the sunny day was patching of holes in the present rough, two-lane pavement.

Rimbey said the contract permits Calhoun Contracting to take 300 working days. So far, less than 100 working days have been counted against the project, as determined by the state's resident engineer.

In addition to rain and mud, a 1973 construction strike helped delay the work, he said.

Virtually all grading and fill work has been carried out, Rimbey said. The existing roadway has been kept open to traffic but has developed many chucks.

After concrete is poured to create two lanes on the newly graded section, traffic will be shifted there. Then, necessary fill, grading and paving will be carried out to build two new lanes along the present route.

Along with an unfortunate weather sequence, Rimbey cites the flat, open topography.

27 indicted on 103 rail theft felony charges

Twenty-seven men, including nine from the Quad-City area, have been indicted by a federal grand jury on a total of 103 felony counts and eight lesser charges stemming from a federal investigation into alleged thefts from Terminal Railroad Association cars in Madison County yards.

Many of those indicted were TRRA employees. Announcement of the case was made this morning in Springfield.

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Max Goodwin said the investigation revealed theft of more than a million rounds of ammunition, hundreds of cases of liquor and cigarettes, hundreds of auto tires, scores of air conditioners and garbage disposals, auto batteries, television sets, more than 7,000 pounds of copper and other items.

Railroad employees allegedly switched cars to deserted and remote tracks and repair areas where the cars were opened and looted.

In some cases, cars were intentionally disabled to they would be switched to repair tracks, Goodwin said.

Items stolen were distributed through a network in Southern Illinois and the St. Louis metropolitan area, he added.

Quad-City area residents indicted were:

Viril E. Adams, 4611 Vine St., a TRRA switchman, charged with conspiracy, selling stolen interstate shipments, theft, illegal firearms dealing and firearms dealing.

Joseph Beavins, 2303 E. 23rd St., conspiracy, illegal firearms dealing and selling; Vernon Brooks, 2832 E. 25th St., conspiracy, possession of stolen goods and ammunition, illegal sale of firearms, liquor and ammunition.

Stoppage of trucks worries consumers

With many independent truckers joining in a nationwide strike against both high fuel prices and the scheduled 55 miles per hour speed limit, Quad-Cityans fearing shortages stocked up their supplies of food and other goods during the weekend.

U. S. Attorney General William French Smith yesterday said truck drivers will not be allowed to "shut down the nation" and called on governors to prevent violence against trucks still operating. Drivers say they no longer are able to operate at a profit.

Breaking of a truck window in this area Sunday was reported. In another incident, St. Louis police said James Graham, 47, St. Clair, Mo., an independent trucker, had just left a Hall Street truck terminal at 12:30 a.m. Saturday and was northbound on Riverview when an auto containing four persons forced him to the side of the street.

He got out of his truck and was beaten about the face and scalp with clubs and sticks. An hour later, St. Louis officers saw four men in an auto try to force another truck off the road in the same area.

Charges of assault to do great bodily harm were filed against Floyd D. Caterson, 44, of the 2200 block of Lee Avenue, Granite City, Terry Hughes, 23, of the 1200 block of Iowa Street, Madison, Jimmy Hancock, 40, and Hancock's son, James, 17, both of Cahokia.

Reporting they found a club under the front car seat, police also filed a charge of carrying a concealed weapon against Hughes. All four were identified as independent truckers.

Illinois state police reported harassment of trucks on Interstate 270 near Route 157 at 4 a.m. Saturday.

A truck driver was killed in Pennsylvania when a boulder that had rolled from an overpass crashed through the windshield of his vehicle, and there has been scattered gunfire. Fifteen states report disturbances.

Saxbe assailed "terror and intimidation" which started five days ago as trucks blocked service station pumps and parked at truck stops.

Diesel fuel has been selling at 47 cents a gallon, compared to 33 cents a year ago.

Along with higher costs and lower speeds, drivers oppose limits on the amount of their diesel fuel purchases and cite difficulty in obtaining fuel on Sundays.

Federal Energy Chief William Simon said at a meeting ending early today that he opposes fuel price rollbacks but favors higher truck freight rates.

Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker said he is sympathetic to the striking truck drivers but will take whatever steps are needed to prevent violence.

Truckers currently are proposing higher weight limits on Illinois highways.

Most truck stops in this region stopped providing fuel or ch. entirely Thursday evening. Those affected include the Gateway Midstate Truck Stop at I-70 and Route 203 south of Madison and the Standard Plaza and Union 76 near Troy.

Owners of mobile homes fighting tax

A Committee to Abolish the Mobile Home Privilege Tax made plans for a lawsuit at a meeting Thursday evening at the Long Lake Fire Hall. The standing-room-only crowd was enthusiastic about the proposed suit, saying it would correct inequities.

The privilege tax puts a 15-cent-per-square-foot tax on mobile home owners, the group was told. The tax was signed into law by Gov. Daniel Walker Aug. 28, 1973, and would involve about $90 per home per year.

Co-Chairman Ed Conn began the meeting by introducing the committee members and Attorney Sam Pessin. He then introduced Co-Chairman Lolly Cox, who told how the committee was formed.

Cox asked for a donation of 10 per cent of the total of each person's privilege tax. He said the tax is unfair and discriminates against mobile home owners.

Cox outlined the committee's strategy to eventually abolish the tax. A suit must be filed, people must register and vote, and mobile home owners should pay the tax under protest, he asserted.

"Paying in protest means filling out a protest form and sending it along with the payment check. By doing this the money will be held until the suit is settled," he said.

The president of the Illinois Mobile Home Association told the crowd of mobile home owners that his organization is working through legislation to have the privilege tax repealed.

Attorney Pessin, who has prepared a class action suit, told the audience to pay but protest. He said the tax is unconstitutional on both the state and federal levels. He feels the suit will eventually reach the Supreme Court and be won.

Gerald Cohn, who is running for state representative in the 56th District, sympathized with the committee's views. He emphasized "unfairness involved in taxing a home by size alone, not taking into account the age of the home." He invited the audience members to his office if they wish to discuss the tax and their particular situation.

The floor was opened for questioning, with Cliff Berry as moderator. Representatives of George Musso, county treasurer, told the mobile home owners that their tax payments have been put into a separate fund, and the money with interest would be returned if the suit succeeded.

2 arrested in GC truck incident today

Ivan Foster, 32, of Rural Route Two, Box 1167, and Burl Wheatly, 34, of 3728 Joyce St., were arrested by Granite City police at 19th Street and the railroad tracks at 3:20 a.m. today on state disorderly conduct charges.

Two men allegedly had confronted L. L. Patton, Port Worth, Tex., and told him they would accompany his Trinity Valley Iron & Steel Co. truck to a local truck stop "in the interest of driver safety," Patton said.

Earlier, two men had been harassing the route supervisor at Prairie Farms Dairy Inc., 1800 Adams St., telling him not to allow any trucks to leave the valley plant, officers were told.

The men who visited Prairie

Farms were said to have told the supervisor that any trucks which left would be stopped on the road.

Rattlesnake Mound in park expansion

The state department of conservation has released funds to acquire additional properties in the Cahokia Mounds State Park area, before commercial interests destroy ruins of the only prehistoric Indian city north of Mexico.

Conservation Director Anthony Dean, who has scheduled a press conference for Wednesday at Sunset Hill Holiday Inn, has released $189,000 for acquisition of sites.

Part of the funds will be used to tidy up existing holdings by purchasing "in-holdings," privately held tracts which lie completely within the borders of department-owned areas.

Another part of the $189,000 will be used to acquire at least part of the big and largely unexplored Rattlesnake Mound, according to Charles Tammings of the Conservation Department's site acquisition section.

Milton Thompson, director of the Illinois State Museum, which is responsible for archaeological research and interpretation at the site, said the museum and the Cahokia Advisory Committee have drawn up, at Conservation's request, a list of priorities for the area.

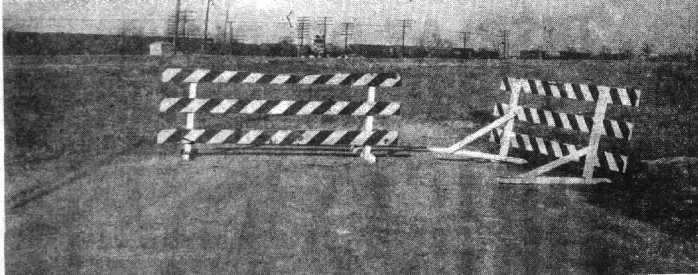

The top recommendation, he said, was obtaining and preserving Rattlesnake Mound, with acquisition of the Kunneman Mound group next in importance.

The Cahokia Mounds sites were apparently first occupied about 700 A.D., and the mounds the Cahokia dwellers erected there include the largest prehistoric earthen construction in the world—Mound 17, which covers 14 acres and rises in four stages to a height of 100 feet.

Scout movement offers 'learning by doing'

"It may be just fun and adventure for the boys who belong, but among educators the Boy Scouts of America has a reputation as being one of the best examples of the educational precept of learning by doing."

B. J. Davis, superintendent of Granite City School District 9 noted that Scouting has many of the same objectives and goals of a formal school program and, at the same time, offers a wide range of activities that is not offered anywhere else. The 64th anniversary of the scout movement is to be observed throughout February.

Davis is a member of the executive board of the Chokoma Mount Council, Boy Scouts of America.

"Boys in Scouting have a non-school opportunity to try the things they learn. That's the whole concept of an independent study," Davis explains.

Davis listed many elements of Scouting that add to a boy's education, such as skills according to age, recognition, training in leadership, community service, high-adventure and travel programs, social skills and the merit badge program which includes over 100 careers and hobbies.

"Scouting is as important today as in 1910," Davis said, "particularly because it is a developmental program. It is geared to help youngsters grow."

Historically, the founder of the Scouting movement in England, two years before it was organized in the United States on Feb. 8, 1910, viewed his effort as primarily an educational endeavor with citizenship and service as motivating objectives.

Transit hearing Feb. 13

The Southwestern Illinois Council of Mayors, meeting last week in Belleville, urged SIUE as the site of a hearing Feb. 13 on a proposed Clayton-St. Louis East St. Louis rapid transit line.

Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk, vice-president of the mayors' group and a board member of the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council, told the gathering that transit and "Slag" decisions were postponed by East-West last week but are due for final action in February. He sought the mayors' opinions on such issues.

George Dingus, chairman, Office of Research and Planning, Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs, spoke on Slag—the proposed St. Louis Area Council of Governments—that would replace both East-West and the Bi-State Development Agency.

Dingus presented information supporting the new government body and answered questions about it.

He said the Illinois unit of the task force that developed the plan will meet on proposed legal wording at noon Tuesday at Howard Johnson's Restaurant on Route 157.

Mayors' President Raymond Jefferson of Shiloh presided at the monthly dinner.

Physics faculty speaker bureau

The physics faculty of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is inviting requests to lecture to school or adult groups and serve as consultants in public schools in the review of their science curricula. Prof. Thomas Baldwin, department chairman, says.

"The services will be provided at no charge on a first-come, first-served basis."

Several physics faculty members have visited classes and given talks in public schools and to civic groups. The department also provides public viewing sessions at the Physics Sky Lab off Bluff Road near the campus.

For several years, the department has been conducting workshops for school science teachers.

Physics faculty members are particularly anxious to talk about the energy crisis, astronomy and the metric system, Baldwin said.

Other topics include weather modification, science and technology for underdeveloped countries, physics of the automobile, lasers and a comparison between the English and American educational systems.

Interested persons may write the Department of Physics at SIUE.

He coupled the warning with a plea to property owners to avert possible disaster by signing up for protection under the federally subsidized flood insurance program, administered by his office in the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Granite City has qualified residents for flood insurance. Venice has passed documents necessary to qualify and Madison is preparing the necessary ordinances for adoption soon.

Last year, Bernstein pointed out, the Mississippi was in flood stage for 89 days, from March through June. That record may be eclipsed this year, he said, if any more rain increases the river's already swollen waters.

According to recent figures, the Mississippi was at least five feet over its banks in Missouri and above the banks in Arkansas and Louisiana. Flood stage is forecast for the lower portion of the river, and the levees have had no opportunity to dry.

The administrator said a great number of flood-prone communities have not yet signed up to participate in the program, leaving them unprotected if the flooding continues.

Bernstein urged these communities to enroll in the program, so they will be able to obtain coverage through their local insurance agent or broker.

He said the program is an application to his office, HUD, Washington, D.C. 20417, which it has adopted minimum land use measures to abate damage from future floods.

Once the application is accepted, insurance is available to residents of the community within a week. The policies are effective immediately through the first 30 days of the community's eligibility. After that there is a 15-minute waiting period.

Substantially reduced premium rates, as well as greatly expanded limits of coverage, will be available under the National Flood Insurance Program as a result of the recently-enacted Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, Bernstein said.

Pamela Baltruschat is married at Holy Cross

The sanctuary of Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Collinsville was adorned with white altar bouquets for the wedding of Miss Pamela Baltruschat and Jim A. Parker.

The Rev. John Koch officiated at the 4 o'clock double ring ceremony on the afternoon of Dec. 29 before 275 guests.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Baltruschat, 7 Magnolia Drive, Caseyville. Her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Parker, reside at 4465 Warnock Ave.

Mrs. Sandra Dillard, organist, played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Dearing" and "Gloria Hymn With Many Crowns." She also accompanied the soloist, Virgil Hudson, who sang the "Song of Ruth" and the Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. Monroe Martin of Imperial, Mo., was the matron of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Mrs. Norman Piecholdi of Maryville; Mrs. William Keller of Granite City, the groom's sister, and Miss Linda King of Granite City.

Alicia Serrano, a cousin of the bride, was the flower girl and Nannette Giovando, also a cousin, presided at the guest register.

Mr. Parker chose Paul Prater of Granite City as his best man. The groomsmen were Paul Parker, the bridegroom's brother, William Prater of Mount Zion and Daryl Rosetto of Collinsville, the bride's cousin.

Raymond Serrano of Collinsville, the bride's cousin, and Jerry Nickles of Granite City, the groom's cousin, served as ushers.

Escorted down the aisle and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white sate de peau lavishly appliqued around the hem and high collar with Alencon lace.

The Empire style bodice was accented with lace and fitted with full bishop sleeves gathered tightly into deep cuffs.

A detachable chapel length train sprinkled with lace motifs was secured at the back waistline.

Seed pearls over lace created a Juliet cap to hold in place the veil of bridal illusion, edged with Alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses, white carnations and stephanotis.

The matron of honor and maids were gowned alike in purple velvet. Made in "old fashioned" style, their dresses featured high ruffled necklines, Empire waists and slightly gathered, full length skirts.

Ruffles detailed the cuffs of the long sleeves and bodices, and set-in waistbands terminated in a tie at the back.

Their Juliet cap headpieces were attached to purple veiling and they held ballerina bouquets of pink carnations and purple straw flowers and interwoven with lavender ribbons and streamers.

Mrs. Baltruschat chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of floral print voile in green, orchid and hot pink on a white background. The fitted bodice had a high ruffled neckline and long sleeves and the softly draped skirt was full length. An orchid velvet belt ending in a bow with long streamers and silver accessories complemented her ensemble.

Mrs. Parker, the groom's mother, chose a floor length gown of hot pink polyester designed with an open lapel collar and Empire waist. The long, slender sleeves were fitted into a deep cuff and a self belt encircled the waistline. She wore black accessories. Both mothers wore catveils orchid corsages in contrasting colors to their frocks.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall.

The former Miss Baltruschat was graduated from Collinsville High School and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. She received a bachelor of science degree in 1971 and a master of science degree in 1972, both from SIUE. She was awarded a fellowship to complete graduate studies in special education.

She is employed as a learning disabilities teacher in the Mascoutah School District and is a member of Phi Theta Kappa National Honor Society and Kappa Delta Pi Educational Honor Society.

Her husband was graduated from Granite City High School and served four years in the United States Air Force. He attended SIU at Edwardsville and is employed at Sutherland Lumber Co.

The newlyweds are making their home in Collinsville following a brief wedding trip with Alencon lace.

Pick 4 for state cage hall of fame

Four Southwestern Illinois residents, Harry Gallatin, Ray Sonnenberg, Chuck Kraak and Elmer Hazzard, will be inducted into the Illinois Basketball Hall of Fame at a dinner April 27 at Illinois State University at Normal.

The nominations were announced by Rich Mason, a member of the board of directors of the Illinois Basketball Coaches Association, sponsor of the event.

Mason, coach of the Triad High School basketball team, said also that the 1967 Southern Illinois University-Carbondale basketball team which won the National Invitation Tournament championship will be honored at the dinner.

Gallatin, former basketball coach and athletic director at SIUE and a Roxana native, will be honored for his 11 years play with the New York Knicks. Gallatin's rugged play in pro basketball gained him the nickname of "Harry the Horse."

He now teaches and coaches golf at SIUE. Hazzard was a sports writer for the Collinsville Herald and probably the Kahok's most vocal fan through the years.

The third and fourth individuals to be inducted into the Hall of Fame are former residents and players on the Collinsville basketball teams. Sonnenberg played his college basketball for the St. Louis University Bulls and was a member of that school's 1948 NIT champions. Kraak starred for Indiana U.

Gallatin played basketball for Northeast Missouri State at Kirksville, Mo. Before taking a coaching job with the St. Louis Hawks, Gallatin coached at SIUC for four winning seasons.

Park meeting set

An organizational meeting for all managers of the Granite City Park District's 1974 baseball program will be held Thursday, at 7 p.m. in Room three of the Nameoki Recreation Center, Amos and Franklin avenues.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK for Michael Hickey of Granite City. SIUE basketball team manager and equipment manager who is studying to be an athletic team trainer specializing in care and prevention of injuries. He is shown taping the ankle of Denise Bertagnoli, Cougar cheerleader from Beld, prior to an SIUE varsity game.

Hickey keeps busy as SIUE student trainer

Michael Gene Hickey of Granite City—team manager and equipment impresario of the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville basketball team—is a young man with a dream. He wants to become an athletic team trainer.

The 19-year-old sophomore is devoted to his job, but he's a realist. Being able to only play No. 2 doubles for Coach Dick Harmon's Granite City High School tennis team has convinced him that his future lies elsewhere as far as sports are concerned.

"I love sports," he explains, "and want to be a part of the program here at SIUE. As a trainer, I thought I could become part of the Cougars' program."

"I first talked to Pat McBride, assistant soccer coach, about it, and he introduced me to our varsity team trainer, Wilfred Burdick. Mr. Burdick permitted me to enroll in the '400 level' course, care and prevention of athletic injuries."

Hickey started out carrying water bottles to the California State University at Fullerton team when it played the Cougar soccer team here last fall. Then he started hanging around the shower and locker room at the soccer field. There he met and worked on Rick LaRose, a member of the SIUE basketball team.

"Rick told me that Coach Jim Dudley of the basketball team was looking for a team manager. So, I applied and got the job," Hickey recalls.

Right now the Cougar basketball players are still wary and not too eager about his aiding them. "About the only things they'll accept willingly from me are air-sickness pills when the team flies to games," he said.

It was Hickey who let it out of the bag that the basketball players refer to themselves as "Dudley's Dirty Dozen."

About his ambition of becoming an athletic trainer, Hickey points out that the field is wide open, particularly at the high school and grade school levels.

Three of the Israeli players were born in the U. S. Larry Gordon, a former All-Ivy League performer at Columbia U.; Steve Kaplan, who broke an NCAA foul-shooting record while playing for Rutgers; and Larry Burg, who played for the University of Utah.

Quits air board post

Dr. Reid Sutton, head of Granite City's air pollution control office and assistant technical secretary of the city's Air Pollution Control Department since December 1971, submitted his resignation to the City Council last week.

Dr. Sutton gave no reason for his resignation to the council but told the Press-Record, "I need to make a change." He said his reasons were personal. The council accepted the resignation unanimously, without discussion.

Dr. Sutton came here from Shell Oil Co. in Wood River where he had been a research chemist 22 years. While working here, he and his family continued to reside in East Alton.

Conference on short supplies

Responding to critical shortages of certain basic raw materials facing many Illinois manufacturers, the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce has scheduled a national Material Shortages Briefing for Tuesday, April 9, in Chicago's Palmer House.

The all-day meeting, featuring analyses and forecasts by authorities representing a number of basic material industries, will be sponsored in conjunction with the U. S. Department of Commerce and selected state, regional and national trade associations. The briefing is expected to attract business leaders from throughout the nation.

Lester W. Brann Jr., president of the 19,000-member statewide business organization, said, "The businessman's biggest problem today is uncertainty and lack of authoritative information about shortages, what causes them, what the future hold and how business firms can plan with shortages facing them."

"Purpose of this briefing is to get the answers for business from the industry experts who manufacture, process or distribute the scarce raw materials in question."

"We must do everything possible to maintain the present level of growth in the Illinois economy and head off any future production curtailments, materials shutdowns and loss of jobs either through energy problems or the lack of raw materials and parts made from these materials."

Among material areas to be discussed are textile products, rubber and allied products, lumber and wood products, chemical products, petroleum, plastics, cement, iron and steel, and nonferrous metals.

Official industry spokesmen will examine the present and future levels of shortages of these basic commodities, with emphasis on Illinois," Brann said. "They will also suggest what actions businessmen can take now and in the future to secure sufficient materials for production, enabling them to better plan future production schedules."

Rotary told of chamber activity

Much more can be accomplished in the Quad-Cities, by working together, Edward F. Reiske, executive vice-president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce told the Madison Rotary club at its Wednesday noon meeting in the Madison Recreation Center.

Reiske pointed out to the Rotarians the many advantages of Chamber membership. He was introduced by Rotarian Frank Fijan.

Birthdays of E. Stanley Howlett and Wayne Scannell were observed with the singing of the traditional birthday song. The members were reminded to make reservations for the ladies night to be held Wednesday Feb. 13 at Tempel's Smorgasbord, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Landfill permit deadline

Illinois Pollution Control Board regulations require all sanitary landfills which have not applied for an operating permit from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency to do so by April 27.

More than 250 sanitary landfills throughout the state already have applied for the permits; another 500 should do so in order to comply with Pollution Control Board regulations adopted last July, according to Richard H. Briedland, director of the Illinois EPA.

"The operating permit process allows sanitary landfill operators the opportunity to review their procedures in detail, with the Illinois EPA technical staff and to learn if their operations comply with state regulations," he said. "Such a review can save the operators unnecessary expense and at the same time insure the neighbors of a landfill that the operation can be managed properly," Briedland added.

"Sanitary landfills are replacing garbage dumps in every part of Illinois. The health and safety hazards, as well as the visual blight, caused by garbage dumps are fast becoming things of the past throughout the state," he said.

Additional information concerning operating permits for sanitary landfills is available from Thomas Clark, EPA Division of Land Pollution Control, 2200 Churchill Road, Springfield, Ill. 62766. Clark's telephone number is 217-525-3334.

Large verdicts in civil cases

A jury verdict in one case and an out-of-court settlement in another involved total damage awards of $262,500 in the Granite City branch of the Circuit Court last week. Both actions were in the court of Circuit Judge Moses W. Harrison II.

David Smith won a jury verdict totaling $132,500 from Wood River Harbor Service and Economy Boat Store. He alleged he was injured while employed there on two occasions.

In the first accident in which he was lifting a 55-gallon drum to fuel a boat and slipped, he won a $7,000 verdict and for the second in which he was loading a boat and fell on a tire, he was awarded $125,000 by the jury. Judge Harrison also accepted an out-of-court settlement in the case of Raymond Butler against the Terminal Railroad Association.

Butler sought $300,000, alleging injuries suffered in 1971 when he was in the company's yards servicing a locomotive and allegedly slipped on oil and fell. Attorneys agreed out of court during selection of a jury on a $130,000 settlement.

Tax tip—Deduct for child care

This is only the second year of the liberalized child care deduction and many families aren't yet aware of the sizable savings it can mean, according to tax expert Sanford Kahn.

"But any family eligible to make this deduction certainly ought to consider itemizing its taxes this year," he says.

"The so-called child care deduction offers an opportunity to claim one of the largest single deductions the federal government has ever granted."

"Before 1972," Kahn explains, "the child care deduction amounted to $800 a year at most. And usually only those with incomes below $6,600 could obtain it."

But now the child care deduction can be as high as $400 a month or $4,800 a year. And it can be claimed by many single persons with a child or by many married couples, provided both spouses work at least three-quarters of a work week and provided their combined income is less than $27,600.

The child care deduction applies to household and dependent care expenses incurred because the taxpayer was gainfully employed.

"Gainfully employed also covers looking for a job," Kahn points out, "and part-time jobs provided the inactive period doesn't extend for an entire month. Gainfully employed does not cover schooling or charitable work that is done gratis."

Basically, requirements for the deduction are these:

—Those eligible are single persons or married couples (both employed) who pay for the care of children under 15. The deduction stops at the child's 15th birthday, whenever it occurs during the year.

—Household and dependent care payments qualify if they are made to almost any domestic worker in the house, except those such as gardeners or chauffeurs and except for relatives or other dependents of the taxpayer.

"If a maid is at home merely to open the door for the child on a regular basis, you may still deduct up to $400 of her monthly wages," says Kahn.

"Of course, babysitters would be covered, too. But remember that if you pay any individual more than $50 a quarter, you must contribute to his or her Social Security benefits."

—The full $400 deduction may be made if the family income is less than $18,000. After that, the deduction is reduced by $1 for every $2 of income up to $28,600.

As an example, an eligible family earning $20,000 a year could deduct up to $3,800 a year of $316 a month. Families with incomes above $27,600 forfeit the right to claim any child care deduction.

"The deduction applies primarily to payments made to anyone hired to help look after a child at home," Kahn says.

"But there is also a provision for out-of-the-household expense. That usually means day-care centers."

Deductions permitted for day-care centers or other out-of-household expenses are $200 a month for one child, $300 for two children and up to the limit of $400 a month for three or more children.

These amounts cannot include tuition or similar educational expenses for children in the first grade or higher.

He cautions that to enjoy the benefits of the deduction, a husband and wife must file a joint return and must itemize the child care expenses—not listing them in addition to taking the standard deduction.

Adds Kahn: "The deduction also may apply in some situations where there are costs not connected with a child."

"This would involve, for instance, expenses for a family in which there's a dependent who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself."

Job safety-health data compiled for base year

Estimates released by the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics indicate that over 5.6 million recordable work-related injuries and illnesses occurred during 1972 in private nonfarm industries (other than railroads and most of mining.) The figure is based on the first annual survey of occupational injuries and illnesses.

Recordable cases include all illnesses and those injuries requiring more than first-aid treatment. The estimates indicate that, on the average, one out of every 10 workers experienced job-related injury or illness during the year.

The survey covers the first full year of recordkeeping under the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 and will serve as the base for comparison with results of future surveys.

The 1971 BLS survey cannot be compared with later years because it covered only six months and may not have reflected possible seasonal patterns. In addition, the last half of 1971 marked the first period for employer recordkeeping, and some confusion over interpretation of definitions occurred.

The 1972 survey showed that, in the total private nonfarm sector, the number of injuries and illnesses per 100 full-time workers for all recordable cases was 10.9. Rates for the industry division ranged from 2.5 in finance, insurance and real estate to 19.0 in contract construction.

Rates for contract construction and manufacturing exceeded the rate for all industries surveyed.

Rates for transportation and public utilities, wholesale and retail trade, services and finance, insurance and real estate fell below this level.

Most of the injuries and illnesses did not involve lost work time. Lost workday cases amounted for about 30 per cent of all injuries and illnesses. About 25 million workdays were lost during 1972. This figure, which excludes fatalities, is equivalent to a loss of 100,000 man-years of work. Reporting units with less than 50 or with 1,000 or more employees tend to have lower incidence rates than units in the mid-size classifications. The highest rate occurred in reporting units of 100-249 employees with an all-industry rate of 14.6 recordable injuries and illnesses per 100 man-years or work.

Occupational injuries accounted for 96 per cent of the total cases, and illnesses of 4 per cent.

The survey is a federal-state program in which reports are received and processed by state statistical grant agencies participating with the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics in the survey.

It is based on questionnaires mailed to a national sample of 200,000 employers. Response is mandatory under the law. An additional 400,000 employers are included in the survey so that states can generate similar estimates. Reported occupational injury and illness data are based on the records employers must maintain under the Safety and Health Act.

Domestic raw steel production hit its highest one-year federal ever in 1973. Steelmakers in this country poured a record 150,422,000 tons of steel during the year, 9,160,000 tons more than the previous single year high of 141,262,000 tons, set in 1969. In 1972, raw steel production reached 133,241,000 tons.

"California, Texas and Arizona—here we don't come. We're staying in Illinois." That was the message conveyed last week by Lt. Gov. Neil F. Hartigan as he issued a call for a "highly visible program to attract regional visitors to Illinois to turn the energy crisis around."

The proposed 1974-75 federal budget to be sent to Congress this week lists 7 per cent raises for congressmen, Cabinet members and certain other federal officials. Members of Congress are to be raised from $42,500 annually to $46,000 by early March, with similar hikes in 1975 and 1976. Major department heads are to be raised from $60,000 to $64,000.

An increase in U. S. trade last year created an estimated 1,500,000 jobs. America had a $1,700,000,000 surplus in its 1973 foreign trade, the first such surplus in three years, as exports rose 44 per cent.

'Insight' back on Channel 9

"Insight," considered by many critics as television's top dramatic series with a religious theme, returns to Channel 9 on Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 9:30 p.m.

Top stars, including Robert Lansing, Vera Miles, Eileen Zimbalist Jr., Joe Campanella and others, have leading roles in the programs which explore alcoholism, poverty, despair, political corruption and other tension-packed themes.

On Feb. 13, "Roommates on a Rainy Day" explores the sensitive meaning of commitment between two young adults and stars Martin Sheen and Pam Murphy. "Insight" for Feb. 20 will be pre-empted by "Theatre in America."

On Feb. 27, Bob Newhart and Anne Francis star in a comedy, "Happy Birthday Marvin," about a man's encounter with the crises of middle age.

The series, produced by the Paulist Fathers, is concerned with "the dignity of man in the modern world, caught between the confusing forces of good and evil, between strength and weakness." The aim is to create a "God-centered universe into which non-believing viewers will be invited to enter and look around."

A viewer's guide to the series is available to Channel 9 members. Requests should be sent to: KETC-TV, 6999 Millbrook Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63130.

Health plan outlined by Pres. Nixon

In his 1974 State of the Union address to a joint Senate-Congress session last week, President Richard M. Nixon outlined his proposals to curb inflation without a recession, bolster U. S. energy production, encourage Middle East peace, cut "red tape" and strengthen revenue-sharing, protect the right to privacy, achieve more open access to world markets and reform federal school aid.

The President asked $26 billion for federal health programs and called for a new system of health insurance avoiding U. S. control of health care.

He proposed greater federal aid to public transportation systems and urged an income-maintenance plan intended to assure more efficiency in welfare programs.

Stressing that he does not plan to resign and asserting that "one year of Watergate is enough," Mr. Nixon pledged cooperation with the House Judiciary Committee, which is making a preliminary impeachment investigation.

He said his first priority will continue to be efforts "to establish a new structure of peace in the world that can free future generations from the scourge of war."

Hartigan urges bigger senior citizen benefits

Lieutenant Governor Neil F. Hartigan last week called for an end to the poverty that exists for many Illinois senior citizens. "These are people who have paid taxes and have worked to help build this state for the last 40 years. It is wrong to force them into poverty when they should be living with dignity," he asserted.

He called for additional benefits for the nearly 300,000 senior citizens who are eligible to apply for the "circuit breaker" property tax relief program, and urged an end to "the misleading forms and instructions which keep seniors from benefits they're entitled to. We're strangling our seniors with bureaucratic red tape."

"Our work over the past several months with the 290,000 seniors who should have been eligible for 'circuit breaker' tax relief clearly identifies these people as those most in need of and entitled to additional assistance—especially when only 129,000 received a grant and 80,000 were turned down," he said.

Hartigan's program specifically calls for:

1. Modifying the "circuit breaker" by exempting the first $1,800 of income from the income calculation and lowering the income percentage from 6 per cent to 4 per cent for the income between $1,800 and $3,000, as outlined in H.B. 2135, sponsored by Rep. Jones.
2. Raising homestead exemptions to at least $2,500 to enable seniors to remain in their homes and help to stabilize existing communities, as described in H.B. 9, introduced by Rep. Jones.
3. A freeze of rents at Dec. 31, 1972, levels for those eligible for "circuit breaker" relief, with the Illinois Housing Development Authority subsidizing the difference between frozen rents and increased rents in the same locations.

This should be attempted until we develop programs for the 33,000 units of senior housing we are now lacking. We can no longer sit idly by and watch seniors being forced from their lifelong homes by inflation and our inability to mount programs to provide decent housing for them," Hartigan said.

4. Exempting seniors from payment of the sales tax on food, clothing, fuel and medicine—both prescription and non-prescription drugs—for those qualified for "circuit breaker" relief. Identification would be through a numbered card and recordkeeping would involve present sales tax reporting procedures.

"How does a person living on $200 a month or less, pay taxes, rent, food, medicine and clothing? You and I know it isn't possible. The unfortunate reality is that food and drugs are not purchased and a human being suffers unnecessarily. This is not a pie-in-the-sky proposal," he continued.

"Money is available to find a positive program to meet the needs of the elderly."

"A review of the state's current fiscal situation indicates that a mid-year budgetary balance of $157 million exists in the General Revenue Fund, according to published reports. "About $13 million of the $29 million appropriated for 'circuit breaker' tax relief was not used this year and a similar amount will not be used next year based on the existing eligibility formula."

"Approximately $60 million of state funds can be freed, assuming the federal government took over the funding responsibility for old-age assistance," Hartigan said.

"In large part, this is not new money. It is money that has been appropriated for programs for the elderly."

"This isn't entirely a program for senior citizens. Thousands of young families of my generation want to see their parents enjoy the kind of life to which they are entitled. Yet, inflation makes it harder and harder for them to meet this obligation."

He called for mailing—to each of the 210,000 who applied for "circuit breaker" assistance last year—a substantially less complicated application form and instruction sheet. Forms would be mailed by March 1, 1974, as provided in H.B. 33, sponsored by Rep. Giorgi.

The lieutenant governor also said senior citizens should be asked their opinion of existing programs and the names of other persons who may not be aware of special benefits.

GRADING AND EXCAVATION work preliminary to construction of an educational building for the Bethel Missionary Baptist Church is under way on the building site at Victory Drive and Marshall Avenue. The $35,000 building will be 36 by 50 feet. Construction is expected to be completed by late May.

Court delays assailed in address to Illinois chiefs

Lieutenant Governor Neil F. Hartigan of Illinois issued a call for professional, preventive police work in addressing last week's banquet at which Ronald J. Veizer was installed as president of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police. Nearly 800 attended the event.

Lt. Gov. Hartigan called for cooperation by law enforcement officers with "swift, vigorous prosecution."

He asserted: "The feeling of over indulgence and lack of motivation, two commonly expressed symptoms of modern society, does not mean that we, as a society as a whole, cannot seize this opportunity to create change."

"We have the needs there... for working with the youth and with the aged, to name two areas."

Lt. Gov. Hartigan referred to formation of a youth conservation corps as a possibility and means of aiding young people.

"All of us have seen youths standing around on street corners. A properly organized conservation corps could turn southern and central Illinois into the recreational and tourist attraction it should be and, at the same time, give these boys a job to do."

"We should see there are no communities in the state where you and I would be afraid to locate our families. For the last few weeks we have been asking you to carry the burden. Let's get our message across and get it to a more active citizenry."

"I know studies have been made, but I have had studies to the top of my ears. Why can't we take some of that money used for studies and apply it to your personal problems... to reduce the amount of time you have to wait to get new communication equipment or a squad car... and give you the kind of budget you need for your departments."

Lt. Gov. Hartigan said the 1,750 men in the Illinois State Police are spread across 102 counties. "When you figure they work on three shifts... some are on vacation, or having days off or are spending too much time in court... the force is inadequate."

"Too often the person needed on the front line of law enforcement is not there. We can do better than we are doing... we must update our system of criminal justice."

"There are too many continuances granted and too many officers who are disgusted when they see a good arrest case made only to watch it go down the drain."

"Too much of a burden is being placed on the policeman which should be spread more equally."

Hartigan cited the work being accomplished with senior citizens. "We let them retain their basic dignity and you find they are willing to work. The same program can be applied to other groups."

Lt. Gov. Hartigan concluded by saying... "I am willing to work the next three years and willing to listen to try to change them into years of opportunity."

State to Survey FA 151 controls

Although previous surveys had indicated traffic controls at FA Route 151 and Rock Road were "adequate," the Illinois Department of Transportation will make a new survey to determine contributing factors to a large number of serious traffic accidents at the intersection.

Mayor Paul Schuler said last week that a request for a survey was made by the city because of the accident record at the Rock Road intersection with the Great River Road. He received notice this week that the DOT maintenance engineer's office will make the study, the mayor said.

Why can't we take some of that money used for studies and apply it to your personal problems... to reduce the amount of time you have to wait to get new communication equipment or a squad car... and give you the kind of budget you need for your departments."

Lt. Gov. Hartigan said the 1,750 men in the Illinois State Police are spread across 102 counties. "When you figure they work on three shifts... some are on vacation, or having days off or are spending too much time in court... the force is inadequate."

"Too often the person needed on the front line of law enforcement is not there. We can do better than we are doing... we must update our system of criminal justice."

"There are too many continuances granted and too many officers who are disgusted when they see a good arrest case made only to watch it go down the drain."

"Too much of a burden is being placed on the policeman which should be spread more equally."

Hartigan cited the work being accomplished with senior citizens. "We let them retain their basic dignity and you find they are willing to work. The same program can be applied to other groups."

Lt. Gov. Hartigan concluded by saying... "I am willing to work the next three years and willing to listen to try to change them into years of opportunity."

Presbyterian church break-in Several items were stolen in a burglary at First Presbyterian Church, 22nd Street and Delmar Avenue, the Rev. Dave Maxton, pastor, reported, last week.

Among the items taken were a record player, tape recorder, slide projector and a microphone. An inventory is being taken to determine if anything else is missing. Police recovered several items from a trash can behind a home in the 2100 block of Delmar Avenue Wednesday night, including the church's record player. Two boys, who officers believe hid the items in the trash can, were arrested for prowling. Officers are considering filing charges of burglary against them. The sources of the other items in the trash can have not been identified.

Resignation by Chuckholes Nixon forecast a problem statewide

President Nixon will resign rather than face an impeachment trial, Frank Mankiewicz, campaign manager for George McGovern, predicted last week at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. He opened a series of lectures on issues in journalism and politics by talking about Watergate and its impact on the country.

The future of the presidency is the central question in Washington today, Mankiewicz said. He said he believes Mr. Nixon will be removed eventually, either by the current Congress or the next.

Impeachment would calm the country because it would restore a sense of security and stability," the former Kennedy and McGovern aide said.

Calling attention to public opinion polls showing that more than 70 per cent believe the president is guilty of covering up aspects of the Watergate burglary while only 37 per cent favor impeachment, Mankiewicz said he fears many people have a feeling of resignation and hopelessness about the current national situation.

Mankiewicz said the "dirtiest trick of all" in the Watergate scandal is an effort made "to convince the public that all politicians are as dirty as those involved in Watergate."

"If this is true we might as well turn the country over to the crooks," he said. "If we really believe that impeachment would replace one set of crooks with another, then we may have come to an end of an experiment (in government) which began 200 years ago."

Crisis in higher education

By KEN WATSON
Press-Record
Springfield Bureau

A crisis in higher education is building in Illinois.

It could become the most explosive issue of the 1974 session of the legislature. By deciding some close legislative races, it could well determine whether Republicans or Democrats hold the majority in the next legislature.

Perhaps most important of all, it could prove to be a key factor in the political future of Gov. Daniel Walker.

The issue surfaced at the Statehouse when Senate President William Harris of Pontiac put the Republican legislative leadership on record as opposing proposed tuition increases at state colleges and universities.

In doing so, Harris put an immediate squeeze on Walker, who has yet to take a public

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD
Page 14 Mon., Feb. 4, 1974

stand.

However, Walker has been able to buy some time by issuing a statement through an office spokesman that he will not decide on the tuition proposals until he reviews the total state budget next month.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education has recommended an increase averaging $30 a year for each student at senior institutions.

The Board of Trustees already has adopted a $60-a-student tuition increase for the 1974-75 school year.

The U. of I. decision has already touched off a storm of protest from students and parents throughout the state. The 12-cent hike means that families will have to pay $556 a year in tuition alone to send a child to Illinois U.

Further fueling the parental indignation is an accompanying increase in rates at residents hall on the Champaign-Urbana campus.

The rate for an individual student is going up $86 a year. Next fall, it will cost $1,350 a year for a student in a university residence hall.

Similar hikes are in prospect at other state colleges and universities.

The tuition and residence hall increases come at a time when families are already bitter at the tightening inflation crunch.

The financial means for sending a son or daughter "away to college" are climbing beyond the reach of more and more families.

This is reflected in the fact that while state college enrollments are still rising at most institutions, they are doing so at a sharply reduced rate.

At some institutions, there has been an enrollment drop, such as at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, which experienced a 5.81 per cent decline from the previous year.

At SIUC this contributed to a sharp cut in the budget and a layoff of more than 100 faculty members, which in turn has triggered a bitter legal fight over the tenure issue attracting national attention.

Gov. Walker a year ago slashed the requested $645 million of the Board of Higher Education by $70 million and the capital improvements requests even heavier, by $200 million.

The governor's higher education cuts precipitated a public battle not only with the board itself but with heads of the individual institutions. U. of I. President John Chubb of spearheaded the college attack, and a repeat of the Cortez-Walker debate appears certain for 1974.

But the fight this year will be more intense than ever. Even a year ago, a commission of the Board of Higher Education reported that 40 per cent of Illinois families could not meet the costs of college at then current levels of state support.

Industrial growth by Todd, Apex, Shasta, Midwest Steel, Archer-Daniels, GC Steel

Construction on 19 area industrial projects began or was completed during 1973, according to a report to the Illinois Metro East board of directors by Richard H. Dixie, executive director of the industrial development group.

Dixie said the 19 projects represent a capital investment of nearly $20 million and in total will create over 300 new manufacturing jobs in this region.

He noted that 1974 promises to be another active year for industrial development, with announcements of impending construction projects having been made by Amco Oil Co. in Wood River, Apex Oil Co. in Granite City, Century Homes, Inc. in Belleville, Mal Landfill Corp.-Alton Box Board Co. at Chouteau Island and Olin Corp. in Hartford.

Summaries of new industries and expansions during 1973 in Madison and St. Clair Counties follow:

ARCHER-DANIELS-MIDLAND COMPANY—Granite City.

Construction of a new soybean processing plant for Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. commenced during 1973. This multi-million dollar facility, which will handle 1,000 tons of soybeans per day in the production of soybean oil and meal. Employment is expected to total 45 persons.

BECK VANILLA PRODUCTS—East St. Louis.

Beck expanded its operations in 1973 by 25 per cent through construction of a 10,000-square-foot building addition. The new building will provide a new shipping point and additional warehouse space. The firm, a major producer of food flavorings.

Expansion of Clark's Hartford refinery was begun during 1973. When completed, the capacity of the refinery will be increased to 80,000 barrels per day. The new plant will double existing capacity. Clark purchased the refinery from Sinclair Refinery Co. six years ago.

DOW INDUSTRIAL SERVICE—Highland.

Construction of a new 6,000-square-foot building at Highland Industrial Court is near completion. This is a subsidiary of Dow Chemical Co. The firm provides equipment cleaning services for local industries. About 15 persons are to be employed at this plant.

Excel opened a new 50,000-square-foot warehouse in Highland during the year. The new facility will serve as the distribution hub for a 12 state region. Excel is a manufacturer of kitchen cabinets and bathroom vanities.

GRANITE CITY STEEL—Granite City.

Granite City Steel undertook two expansion projects during the year—a 6,000-square-foot mechanical maintenance building. Cost of this construction was estimated to be in excess of $400,000.

HIGHLAND MACHINE & SCREW PRODUCTS CO.—Highland.

Highland Machine & Screw completed a 23,000-square-foot addition to its plant, more than doubling existing manufacturing and warehousing space. The addition will be used initially as a warehouse, but is designed to permit expansion of production capacity in the future.

HIGHLAND SUPPLY CORPORATION—Highland.

Highland Supply occupied an existing 30,000-square-foot facility which it purchased in 1972 and began a 17,500-square-foot expansion of this building in 1973. The firm is engaged in manufacture of foil wrapping and packaging materials.

HULCHER EMERGENCY RAIL SERVICE—Highland.

A new 8,000-square-foot building at Highland Industrial Court was built during 1973 for this firm, new to this area. About 10 persons will be employed at the facility. Hulcher provides emergency services during railroad derailments and other accidents.

LEFTON IRON & METAL COMPANY—Saugat.

Lefton acquired a 60-acre tract in Saugat at mid year. The new site will permit the company to consolidate its operation now located at six sites in East St. Louis. Lefton expects to become one of the Midwest's largest producers and suppliers of steel mills and foundries.

MARTHA MANNING COMPANY—Collinsville.

Martha Manning has undertaken construction of a new 100,000-square-foot garment manufacturing plant on a 24-acre site in Collinsville. The new facility, estimated to cost $12.5 million, will replace the firm's existing multi-story plant. About 125 additional employees are expected to be hired upon completion of the new facility.

MIDWEST STEEL CORPORATION—Granite City.

Midwest Steel has relocated its East St. Louis plant and St. Louis office to a new site in Granite City. The firm manufactures and sells new and used rail and truck materials.

Kaskaskia ring levee breaks

High water continues to plague Kaskaskia Island again this year. The St. Louis District, Army Corps of Engineers, reports that a ring levee built to offer protection for one of the eight holes in the levee system around the island broke during a near-flood flow on the Mississippi River in mid-week.

While five of the eight holes have been completely restored, three openings in the levee could not be totally repaired due to bad weather. Temporary ring levees or cofferdams had been built around the breaches to protect the low-lying island areas.

The Corps says that a phenomenon called a "sand boil" where water and soil boil up from pressure undermined the levee, weakening a 60-foot reach.

With the river expected to crest there today, the Corps hopes to maintain a stable condition with only limited minor flooding in low-lying areas and then repair the damage.

In 1973, Kaskaskia Island was inundated when the levee, built in the 1820s, was overtopped and breached.

Right to Life meeting here

Plans have been completed for a meeting of Right to Life at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the library at St. Elizabeth Hospital. A talk and slide presentation by Sister Ann of Belleville will be presented. Mrs. Margaret MacZura said persons interested in joining the organization are invited to attend this week's meeting.

Alumni oppose SIU Board's elevation of Brown

The board of directors of the 14,000-member Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville alumni association has expressed "total dissatisfaction" with a university administrative reorganization plan adopted by the SIU Board of Trustees Jan. 19.

A resolution adopted by the alumni board says the reorganization action adversely adds to SIUE's dependence on the "Carbondale connection," rather than reducing such dependence.

The administrative reorganization designated James M. Brown, chief of board staff, as permanent chairman of the Southern Illinois University System Council.

The Council is composed of Dr. Brown, who lives in Carbondale, and the two campus presidents, Dr. John S. Ren-deman at SIU Edwardsville and Dr. David R. Derge at SIU Carbondale.

Brown was also authorized to give directions and interpretations of Board of Trustees policy to the presidents.

Such directions and interpretations are to be considered actions of the board unless a president requests the Board of Trustees to reverse Brown and the board does so.

The SIUE alumni board resolution says the university Board of Trustees has "not fulfilled promises and assurances given to students, alumni, citizens advisory group, and interested taxpayers here since 1968 that SIUE was progressing toward autonomy, and that SIUE would evolve into a distinct institution governed to meet the unique needs and environment of Southwestern Illinois."

The resolution contends that the SIU board has "reversed a five-year trend toward autonomy, and has reestablished a governance program which will again make higher education here subservient to existing and made in other than this area."

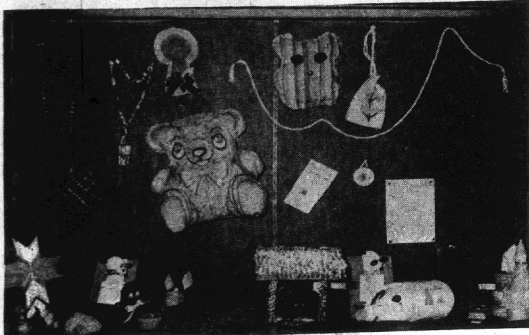

The resolution asks the SIU Board of Trustees to:

- Reverse its recently adopted policy strengthening the role of the chief of board staff.
- Include the SIUE Alumni Association board of directors in the review process on the new governance policy. When the policy was adopted, the Board of Trustees asked for comment within 90 days from various university constituencies but did not include alumni in the request.
- Permit civic leaders and elected officials in this area to be heard during the review of the new governance policies.

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD Mon. Feb. 4, 1974 Page 15

Explore the means to legally separate SIUE as an alternative form of governance and provide for public discussion of both the new governance document and the question of separation at Edwardsville.

Gail Bueger of Granite City, president of the SIUE Alumni Association, said the resolution "speaks for the majority of the 14,000 men and women who have received degrees from SIU at Edwardsville."

LEARNING THE VALUE OF GIVING. Fourth-grade students at Maryville School, under the direction of their teacher Mrs. Gloria Skubish, made gifts for each other in an art project. Their handiwork is on display at the school.

Donates 100 flashlights to area school patrols

One hundred flashlights with batteries will be presented to the safety patrols of the Madison, Venice, and Granite City school districts, by Kiwanian Donald Moser.

Moser, operator of Radio Shack, at the American Village Shopping Center, told the Thursday meeting of the Breakfast Kiwanis Club in Charlie's Restaurant, he is making the gift because he is concerned over children's safety in the early morning hours.

The breakfast Kiwanis Club will hold a membership center, according to Dr. Thomas Layloff, membership chairman.

Dr. Layloff said the club will be divided into teams and the winning team will receive "an all-expense-paid trip to Madison" and the losing team will become the club's officers next week.

Kiwanian Moser announced the club will hold a ladies night Thursday, Feb. 14, at Charlie's Restaurant and the Lisbon Shops will present a style show titled "Peak of Spring."

Plans are under way for the second "hole-in-one" day at Arlington Golf course, Kiwanian Robert A. Harris informed the group.

Next week Miss Margaret Roberts, physical education instructor at Maryville school, will explain the physical education programs in the schools, and show a film on the subject.

Value of giving project theme

To teach the value of giving, students of a fourth-grade art class at Maryville School, under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Gloria Skubish participated in a special project in which they made gifts for each other.

According to the teacher, the activity was more than just an art project. In reality, it was a value study, she said.

The children were encouraged to create meaningful gifts. Some of the gifts included a cross made of match sticks, jewelry, a purse, cup cakes, a candle holder, a pencil holder, a card and other creative and decorative items.

According to their teacher the enthusiasm and appreciation in the classroom as each child presented a gift to another child was a rewarding experience for everyone involved.

"Each child that participated in the project discovered for himself that one of the most important gifts we give anyone is our time," Mrs. Skubish said.

Students participating were Panny Asher, Bradley Badgett, Dawn Barloch, Rhonda Berry, Denise Blanton, Daniel Comer, Patricia Crider, Tina Evans, Anita Garrett, Wesley McCleary, Cindy Nicholas, Becky Nolan, Deborah Pecher, James Cottrell, Marla Price, Laura Richter, Debbie Stimson, Mike Suss, David White, Edward Wilkinson and Sharon Williams.

MRS. MARY ANNE MURPHY, 2679 E. 24th St., has received a Department of Army certificate commending her for outstanding job performance at the Army Aviation Systems Command (AVSCOM), Mrs. Murphy, a clerk-steno in AVSCOM's Aircraft Survivability Equipment (ASE) Product Manager's Office, also received an accompanying quality step increase in salary.

More GC fire hydrants

Installation of eight additional fire hydrants in Granite City was scheduled by the City Council last week in resolutions in which the East St. Louis & Interurban Water Co. is asked to install the hydrants.

The council adopted one resolution calling for the installation of new fire hydrants at 27th Street and Madison Avenue, 28th and Sheridan, Buxton and Wilson, 3000 Forest Ave. and at Moro and Ponton Road.

A second resolution calls for extension of the main from Maple Street and St. Louis Avenue to extend 500 feet south for installation of a hydrant at 18th Street, West 2nd Street and Leyden Drive, and 28th and Circle Drive.

Council members also referred to its finance committee a request by Alderman Walter Nomm that "something be done" to increase the $25 monthly expense account for aldermen. The council's 14 aldermen receive a flat $25 monthly for expenses, without itemization.

Gerald Parmley, chairman of the finance committee, said several other aldermen noted that increases could not be possible until the new budget is prepared. Parmley and his committee have called upon department heads to submit their proposed 1974-75 budgets for consideration by finance officials.

Alderman Sam Whitmer opposed any increase in expense accounts. "I get by because I try to keep my driving within my own ward," he said, "because I try to keep my driving within my own ward. I think $25 is enough."

An ordinance establishing a traffic stop on Roosevelt Avenue at Jefferson Avenue was enacted.

The council also approved an ordinance prohibiting parking Monday through Friday on the north side of 13th Street from the eastern edge of the driveway at 2049 to the corner of 2050 Thirteenth Street.

Nomm also urged the city to take the necessary steps to operate a second dog catcher's truck to pick up stray dogs. There are dogs running all over the city," Nomm said.

The council Monday night referred to the Street and Alley Committee for investigation and a later recommendation on an offer by Hugh Major of South Roxana to buy the city's property on Route 203 south of Madison at an offered price of $42,000.

In his request to buy the property of 22 acres, Major enclosed a certified check for $1,000 as earnest money.

Alderman Gerald Parmley sought to refer the offer to the City Buildings Committee, but withdrew the motion after Alderman Walter Nomm said he believed the matter should be given serious consideration by the Street and Alley Committee. Nomm said he believed the city should dispose of the property, although Alderman R. E. Robertson contended the city should hold onto the ground because of the possibility of a vast increase in its value.

Nomm said he had been told the dump property has a number of "sink holes" which, he said, "would cost $30,000 to fill." He said the offer was a good one and "we should give it serious consideration."

The council also approved payment of $2,250 to the law firm of Calvo, Mateyka and Hill of Granite City for extra work involved in the preparation of a sales brochure for Granite City's $4.1 million bond issue to finance sale of the secondary sewage treatment plant. The bonds were sold to a Chicago firm in November.

Horace Calvo, a member of the law firm, was retained by the city under a contract that provided a fee of $26,250 to handle ordinances and other documents pertinent to the bond sale. A week ago, the firm filed a claim for $28,500. The council at that time approved payment of $26,250, the contract amount, but held up for a legal opinion the remaining $2,250 which was listed for extra work in preparation for the sales brochure.

In Monday night's meeting, City Attorney George Filcott told the council he had checked into the bill for the additional $2,250 and that it should be paid because "the extra work of preparing the brochure saved the city a lot of money by avoiding employment of a fiscal agent."

Plan bid call on Nameoki town hall

Specifications for expanding and remodeling the township auditorium will be available by Feb. 11, the Nameoki Town Board was told in a meeting last week.

The board agreed to advertise for bids which are to be opened at the board's March 11 meeting.

Miller, committee chairman in Nameoki Precinct 11, addressed the board, relaying charges by a dismissed highway department worker that township equipment had been used illegally to remove broken concrete from her property.

She said she had asked how to properly dispose of the concrete and was told it could be used by the highway department for road improvements so her property was free of road material donated to the township.

The board requested a legal opinion from its attorney on whether funds may be borrowed by the township from its federal revenue sharing fund to be used on other funds and later replaced in the revenue sharing account. The township is anticipating warrants for other funds, officials said.

Auditor Norman Hessler requested that Douglas Teetor, town clerk, study whether the board of Supervisor Louis Whitsett is sufficient for the amount of money he manages. He said, Whitsett is bonded for $160,000 but has been in excess of that amount.

A home at 2132 Roberts St., has been condemned by the Madison County Building and Zoning Department, the auditors were told. The owner has been given 30 days to remove the structure, it was noted.

A letter was read from Harold Ruffner, district traffic engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation who informed the board the state would issue a permit for the township to install street lights but would not finance the installation.

The board had asked for three lights on Maryville Road at the intersection of Route 161, State Aid Route 35 and Monk. Whitsett explained the lights were along state highways, the Department of Transportation was asked to install them.

In his answer, Ruffner said, "At present we are keeping our highway lighting to a minimum. This is due to budget restrictions and the energy crisis. As an energy saving measure, we are considering the possibility of reducing some of our existing lighting, as suggested by energy officials."

The board voted to transfer the township's funds from First Granite City National Bank to Granite City Trust & Savings Bank. Whitsett explained he hopes to rotate depositories for township funds every two years.

The auditors voted to collect funds due the township from Harry Briggs, former supervisor, then the township authorized to begin legal proceedings if necessary.

After Briggs left the supervisor's post, it was ruled that some per diem fees he had collected were not permissible. An out-of-court settlement was reached but Briggs declined to make the payments specified in the settlement for more than one year, board members alleged.

An opinion from Schooley was read in which he indicated the highway commissioners not required to remove snow and ice on roads in the township which have not been accepted into the township highway system. Such maintenance could be interpreted as an acceptance of the roads into the township system, Schooley said.

Schooley added the highway commissioner has a duty to system which conform to the county's standards. If he refuses to accept them, any three interested persons may appeal to the county superintendent of highways who then may enter an order incorporating the roads into the township system.

Roads not meeting the county standards do not have to be accepted and legal action against the contractor or bonding company of a plat subdivision may be taken to recover the amount of money expended in bringing the roads into acceptable condition.

Laclede Steel promotes 3

Laclede Steel Company has promoted two corporate officers and elected a new corporate vice president effective Feb. 1. The announcement was made Friday by Paul B. Akin, president of the local steel firm.

The three are Robert S. Turner, formerly vice president-administration, promoted to senior vice president; W. S. Anderson Jr., formerly controller and assistant secretary, named vice president-finance; and Lawrence A. Hazelp, who was elected a corporate officer and named vice president-administration.

Hazelp had been general manager of production scheduling and inventory control.

Turner, a director of the company since 1973, has been with Laclede Steel since 1945.

Previous to being named to his new position, Turner had served as general manager-industrial relations, general manager-production scheduling and inventory control, and vice president-administration, where he was responsible for the direction of the Sales Department.

In his new post, Turner will continue to be responsible for commercial operations at Laclede Steel and the direction of sales. He is a graduate of Washington University in St. Louis.

Anderson joined Laclede Steel in 1970 as controller. He had a background of 19 years in the steel industry, having served as controller, Pittsburgh District, for the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp. and as vice president-finance at the Taylor Forge division of Gulf and Western Industries, Inc.

In addition to his responsibilities for financial and accounting functions, he will also serve as corporate secretary. Anderson is a graduate of Youngstown University and the Wharton Graduate School of Finance & Commerce, University of Pennsylvania.

Hazelp began his employment with Laclede Steel in the Industrial Engineering Department, Alton plant, in 1957. He has been plant industrial engineer, manager of production scheduling and, since 1970, general manager-production scheduling and inventory control.

As vice president-administration, Hazelp will direct the Purchasing and Traffic Departments as well as production scheduling and inventory control. He is a graduate of Washington U., St. Louis.

Constitutional controversy—the amendatory veto—on '74 ballot

Illinoisans will be facing their first move to make a change in the new state constitution in the Nov. 5 general election.

Voters will be asked whether they want to make a change in the section relating to gubernatorial powers. The proposed change deals with the governor's amendatory veto of legislation sent to him by the General Assembly.

Under provisions for the amendatory veto as outlined in the 1970 Illinois Constitution, the governor can make some changes in the legislation and return it to the General Assembly.

If the General Assembly accepts the changes, the legislation then becomes law. But the General Assembly also has the right to try to override the governor's action.

For some time, lawmakers have been toying with the idea of giving voters a chance to say whether they would like to change the system of the amendatory veto power of the governor. It started under former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Ogilvie used the power to rewrite a bill to grant aid to private and parochial schools. The bill went to the Illinois Supreme Court to test its constitutionality. The high court ruled that Ogilvie had overstepped his bounds on the use of the veto.

This started discussions among some of the legislators on revising the section relating to gubernatorial powers.

The center of the discussions was of a constitutional nature. Lawmakers said they felt that the constitution gave the governor too much power over legislation, thus breaking down separation of powers theory in government—executive, legislative and judicial.

The legislators maintained that laws hammered out after study and debate should be left as passed. Then the governor has the power either to reject the legislation or approve it.

Some lawmakers have pointed out that if the governor has wide amendatory power on legislation, he can thwart the legislative intent.

The first time Gov. Daniel Walker used the amendatory veto was last year when he changed the wording and amounts of state funds which the General Assembly had approved for the Chicago Transit Authority. Walker wanted to reduce the amount to be received by the CTA.

However, the legislature voted to override Walker's amendatory veto and put the legislation back in its original form.

The proposal was presented to the General Assembly by Rep. Charles Fleck, R-Chicago. It had 33 co-sponsors.

The original thought behind the amendatory veto procedure was to "clean up" and organize wording in bills, some of which were passed by legislators in the "wreck hours" of the morning as they sought to complete necessary business prior to adjourning a session.

Chouteau studies heating plan for new building

A proposal by Union Electric Co. to heat a new Chouteau Township garage electrically was submitted to the Town Board of Auditors at its meeting last week.

The auditors agreed to study the proposal. The town garage is to be constructed this spring. Bids are to be received this month, but plans have not been completed on schedule and should be received soon, the auditors were told.

The board voted to hold two meetings in February, the first at 9 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 9, and the second at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 25.

It was decided to issue a $15,000 anticipation warrant for road and bridge purposes in order to meet the net payroll and to pay current bills.

A letter from U. S. Congressman Melvin Price (D-23rd District) was read in which Price said he has looked into the status of the four-township sewer program but has found no changes in the project's priority number or indications the state of Illinois plans to release money for new sewer projects in the near future.

The auditors voted to allow the clerk to purchase a calculator for keeping the township books.

Reviving medieval, renaissance music

Interest in medieval and renaissance music is enjoying a big revival, according to two members of the science faculty at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"For example, witness today's widespread use of the recorder, a soft-toned flute with a plug in the mouthpiece," says Tom Bouman, associate professor of chemistry. Bouman, who plays the recorder, and Roger Hill, assistant professor of physics, who plays the rauschpfeife, krummhorn and kortholt, as well as the recorder, are members of The Collegium Musicum at SIUE. Hill is co-director.

"The Collegium Musicum" is a time-honored name for groups playing old and rarely performed works," director Edwin Warren, music department professor, explained. Bach (1685-1750) had such a group when he was choir director and organist at the Church and School of St. Thomas in Leipzig.

Bouman says the revival in old music is due in part to the fact that it is easier than modern music to appreciate emotionally. "It has a certain pleasing simplicity and its dance tunes are fun to perform. Also, it can be performed by small groups."

Bouman and Hill have been interested in medieval music since their undergraduate days. Bouman at Washington University and Hill at California Institute of Technology.

By temperament, scientists are curious and want to find out about things not too well known," Bouman commented. "Many physical scientists are interested in early music because of its mathematical aspects. Physicists are interested in acoustics (the science of sound)."

"There always has been a close connection between math and music," according to Warren, whose chief interest is in early renaissance music. "The whole movement started when the Greeks took mathematics. Pythagoras, who laid the foundation for the scales on which music is based."

Modern composers are rediscovering the close connection between math and music which old composers appreciated, the SIUE musicologist pointed out. "The music of the 13th century sounds quite modern to us (members of the music). If you play an ancient piece of music and follow it with a modern one, 50 percent won't be able to tell the difference."

Names of some of the old instruments have survived. Names for organ stops, Hill explained. The krummhorn is an obsolete reed wind instrument. The kortholt, a similar but doubled up like a bassoon. Also a reed instrument, the rauschpfeife has a tone like a bagpipe but has no bag. The sackbut is the forerunner of the trombone. Designed originally at SIUE for graduate students, who receive two hours of credit. The Collegium Musicum is open to anyone interested in the study and performance of old and rarely-performed music.

Demos hope to control Illinois Senate this fall

SPRINGFIELD — If 1974 produces a Democratic landslide as some political observers think, Democrats should have no trouble gaining control of the state Senate.

Republicans presently hold a 21-19 vote in the Senate. Last time, though, Bartulis whipped Jerry Corbett of Hardin by 6,018 votes. Corbett was under criminal indictment at the time of the election.

Democrats would have been considered a cinch to win it back this year had Rep. Kenneth Boyle of Carlinville decided to run for the upper chamber, but he declined, leaving Vince DeMauro of Carlinville and Russell Mannell of Stanton in a primary battle.

If the pair can avoid a bitter primary fight, the victor will have a good chance in the general election.

One factor in consideration in this district is geographical balance. Bartulis won last time, at least in part, because he captured heavily Democratic Macoupin County by 3,400 votes. Corbett did poorly there but did well in the rest of the district.

Democrats are rated as possibilities in only two other districts: the 18th where former Sen. John Egan of Chicago is running against Edward Scholl, also of Chicago; and the 27th where David (Dutch) Scott of DeKalb is challenging David Shapiro of Amboy. Scholl and Shapiro won by 13,000 and 10,000 votes last time against these challenges.

The shoe fits the other foot here, too. Democrats have eight senators seeking reelection. Republicans are most helpful in the 58th District where Rep. Norbert (Doc) Springer of Chester is challenging Kenneth Buzbee of Carbonale. Buzbee was an upset victor in 1972 when he defeated former Rep. Gale Williams by 4,812 votes for the seat held for six terms by Republican John Gilbert.

Buzbee was one of the few candidates helped by McGovern's candidacy. Jackson County was the only county in the state to be carried by a Democratic presidential nominee.

Chicago Democrats have no threats, they all won last time by 20,000 votes. That leaves two Downstate seats: James Conwell of Adams and Ann Keegan of Rockford will be favored over the GOP primary candidates.

In the latter's race is her health — she was seriously ill last year and if she becomes ill again to the point she could not be a candidate then the Republicans could defeat another Democrat.

They tied up two orders: one requiring businesses to disclose campaign contributions before doing business with the state and the other requiring thousands of state employees to disclose their sources of income.

To his credit, Walker has disclosed his own income and placed his assets in a blind trust in order to eliminate any potential conflicts of interest. That's virtually unheard of at the state level. In addition, he has established a State Board of Ethics and required top aides and those in sensitive state positions to make public their financial status.

He has also met with the public 18 times in what he terms accountability sessions, sessions in which anyone can attend in order to ask him questions about his administration.

The biggest disappointment, even to many of his supporters, was his Department of Personnel order removing 5,000 jobs from future certification under the civil service system. Walker defended the action by saying it was done in order to hire more blacks.

Walker also claims it was done in order to give legislators more patronage jobs. As evidence, they point out the entire state is in the controversial RTA. Walker, of course, denies it. For one thing, he campaigned against such patronage jobs and has bitterly denounced them since.

Charles Harting, Illinois Civil Service Commission later ruled that the order, issued by Gov. Nolan Jones, was invalid. Jones then rescinded the order. Two members of the commission — both appointed by Walker — signed the commission's statement. Both are considered to be Democrats.

The third member, Al Langenbeck, a Republican, was on vacation, and did not participate.

If the critics are right, Walker hasn't reformed at all. It's been "politics as usual."

Walker also puts at the top of his list the fact that the number of state employees is a few thousand less than when he took office and that only a few hundred jobs changed hands since his takeover.

Another source who takes pride in it is the cabinet he has assembled. Many of them are top professionals in their fields and that's not true from across the country.

But being out-of-state didn't help him politically. Many of the top jobs go to unfamiliar faces don't help him any with the rank-and-file workers.

And the appointment that received the most publicity — all negative — was that of Anthony Angelos as director of the state Department of Insurance. Angelos withdrew voluntarily before being considered by the state Senate. The Senate, however, didn't like all of the others, either an unprecedented number of nominees, seven, were formally rejected.

That wasn't the only time he had trouble with the General Assembly. Several of the bills which he vetoed were overridden and became law without his signature which is uncommon because of the almost even balance between the two houses.

Gov. Daniel Walker seems to have adapted the new strategy during his first year in office. Like Stevenson, he never held public office before and had a lot to learn. By the end of the year, though, he seemed to be more willing to give some and it resulted in passage of a new state lottery and a Regional Transit Authority for the Chicago area.

One of the major accomplishments of his first year in office was the passage of his executive order which prohibits state employees from asking other state employees to join a union.

His critics contend that the order accomplishes little, if anything at all, because employees can sell the tickets on their own time after work.

Social Implications of the Energy Crisis

By Prof. Robert H. Lauer

(Dr. Lauer is chairman of the department of sociology at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. His specialty is research in social change. His opinions are his own and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the administrators or faculty of SIUE.)

Over thirty years ago a noted sociologist said that we are "helplessly drifting from one crisis and catastrophe to another." His thoughts have been expressed by others before and since — crises are not new to man. But each of recreation, create new opportunities for the quality of life; the current energy crisis carries within itself the potential for either a new age of hope or the dawn of man's slow self-destruction.

In the short run, the American people face neither, only a series of more or less painful adjustments. Life styles necessarily will be altered. We will have to find, for example, alternative means of recreation, create new schedules for work and play; develop new patterns of planning and zoning; modify school and church activities, and alter our tastes as energy usage consumes an increasingly large proportion of the family income. This financial cost of energy will hit hardest at lower-income families; the poor will lose ground in their efforts to achieve a standard of living desired by all Americans.

A crisis always carries with it the potential for psychological strain, and people under strain have an affinity relating to others. The extent of strain due to the energy crisis will depend partly upon how much adjustment is required upon whether people believe it to be genuine. If the crisis is defined as real, problems of adjustment will be minimal. Americans coped well with shortages in World War II. The English have managed a series of economic crises and austerity campaigns. Rhodesians were reported to have found new zest in life in the face of widespread economic sanctions by other nations. In other words, a real crisis can lead people to rally together, and their joint efforts can give new meaning to their lives. On the other hand, if the crisis is not defined as real (and numerous Americans do not accept it as real), we will face not only problems of psychological adjustment but also serious problems of non-cooperation, profiteering, exploitation, etc. Those who suffer economically from the illegitimate crisis will be potential recruits for new radical right- and left-wing movements. And how will Americans define this crisis? It depends upon their judgment of the credibility of government and industry.

These problems are not new, but they pale before the long range crisis. For the energy problem reflects a larger crisis which could result in the destruction of civilization as we know it — the crisis of the earth's resources.

A group of researchers at Massachusetts Institute of Technology has used a computer to estimate man's future on the basis of his present use of natural resources; they conclude that we may now be living at the peak of the quality of life, that it is impossible for all people to enjoy the standard now existing in the West, and that we cannot avoid catastrophe without a radical reduction in population growth and industrial output. Even apart from the shortage of oil, one researcher estimates that within about 25 years there will be worldwide shortages of such goods. But such cement, coal, fertilizer, and meat. These shortages would provide the setting for widespread stress, drastic reductions in standards of living, serious conflict over scarce resources, and, ultimately, world war.

There is hope, however, in the midst of these predictions of disaster, for one factor they do not take into account is the development of new technologies which can resolve the problems. But such development will require commitment, and that commitment may be difficult to secure. In the face of massive human needs and the specter of a crisis of resources, the nations of the world continue to invest enormous sums of money in the military. According to a recent news report, the Nixon administration is prepared to increase military expenditures to deal with economic problems caused by the energy crisis. That will only insure the coming catastrophe. We need a commitment to research in the social sciences so the new technologies may be used in humane ways.

One man who has taken the problem, not merely an American one. Strong political leadership is needed to establish a worldwide commitment to cope with the crisis of resources and to disengage nations from military bonds. Otherwise the quality of life can only deteriorate, and man may become the best-armed savage that ever destroyed itself.

Hartigan's report lists successes

SPRINGFIELD — Lt. Gov. Neil F. Hartigan has issued his first annual report, which in the main showed many successes in areas of state government.

Hartigan, who is in his second year of a four-year term, said, he was especially pleased with advances made in five key areas — senior citizens, mental health and developmental disabilities, St. Louis-East St. Louis Airport, arts and energy.

In 1973, Hartigan said, his office in 1973 focused on a total of 13 areas.

"In my first year," Hartigan said, "we were able to demonstrate that government can be responsive to the people — that it can serve their needs and that the state can pull together as one unified body for the good of all."

Hartigan pointed to his efforts to secure the Columbia-Waterloo Illinois site for the location of a major airport to serve the evergrowing St. Louis metro region. The site is in Monroe County in Illinois, just a short distance from the mighty Mississippi River.

"We met with the people to learn their views and communicated these views to state and congressional officials and met with federal ambassadors to provide a toll-free call service to the entire state," he said.

Recently, a large hurdle was cleared when the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) approved the Columbia-Waterloo site and submitted these recommendations to the Department of Transportation. I will continue to work for final approval.

He also opposed the more than $12 million reduction in the budget for the Mental Health Department and the discontinuance of several department programs.

Hartigan said he felt that because of his success in getting the Department on Aging approved he was asked to help work on problems of the developmentally disabled.

He helped negotiate some of the features in legislation that was pending the General Assembly.

sembly into the present structure of the Mental Health Department. One of the major features of the agreement was the reduction of $10 million in supplemental funds. Another feature was to change the department's name to Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities, which Hartigan said "will move the focus of care to the more than 300,000 people in Illinois who suffer from mental retardation, cerebral palsy and epilepsy."

Hartigan also points with pride to his work with Illinois' senior citizens.

"Our work with senior citizens in ascertaining their needs enabled us to form a commission on Aging which recommended the creation of a cabinet-level office," he said.

This was done and the Department on Aging was formed and a staff for the state's new cabinet-level office is being formulated. A special telephone service for senior citizens in the metropolitan area of Chicago has been installed. With the telephone line they can quickly get help.

"My office is exploring the possibility of expanding the senior citizens program to provide a toll-free call service to the entire state," he said.

The report also touches on the current energy situation. The report shows that last August Hartigan's office conducted a study on the use of coal gasification as a partial solution to the energy crisis in Illinois.

Bouman has a great abundance of coal reserves which can be used more productively to enhance the economy of Illinois and, simultaneously, increase our energy supply.

The report also outlined some of Hartigan's work in securing more money from the General Assembly for the Illinois Arts Council to enhance arts and cultural activities statewide.

COMMENT

Gov. Dan Walker's first year

By AL MANNING

"Reform governors, traditionally, have bucked the machine and eventually, been co-opted into the machine and given in to the machine and been outdrifted by the people. The governor would seem to have but one possible, winning tactic; that is to reform so fast and effectively that he will bind the people to him; in other words, become stronger than the machine."

Eric Sevareid

SPRINGFIELD — Sevareid, the television news commentator, made the above assessment in 1960 when talking about the late Adlai Stevenson's first year in office as governor of Illinois.

Gov. Daniel Walker seems to have adapted the new strategy during his first year in office. Like Stevenson, he never held public office before and had a lot to learn. By the end of the year, though, he seemed to be more willing to give some and it resulted in passage of a new state lottery and a Regional Transit Authority for the Chicago area.

Supporters cast Percy in the Horatio Alger image

By LESTER BELL

WASHINGTON — The Newbushs' Lodging House, whose foundations and runaways inspired Horatio Alger to write "Lucky Jim," was a whole shell on poor boys climbing the 19th Century heap, was Percy's Sen. Charles H. McNabb.

He has also met with the public 18 times in what he terms accountability sessions, sessions in which anyone can attend in order to ask him questions about his administration.

The biggest disappointment, even to many of his supporters, was his Department of Personnel order removing 5,000 jobs from future certification under the civil service system. Walker defended the action by saying it was done in order to hire more blacks.

the poverty level."

"Many times food was a real problem," Percy recalled. "We had no telephone, no automobile. A family of five had one bedroom. A brother and I for several years, we ate at a table in the dining room. We moved 13 times in 17 years. I think we were evicted most of the time."

Percy's father was a school teacher and head of Bell & Howell, Joseph McNabb, to hire his father in the small camera company so Edward Percy could get off the hotel night clerk's job that was keeping him from his family. McNabb also hired Chuck at $12 a week for the summer in the customer service department.

Percy still worked summers for McNabb after getting a scholarship to the University of Chicago.

Percy's entrepreneurship as operator of a fraternity food and laundry cooperative netted him $10,000 on a $150,000 gross in his senior year. He was, said Chancellor Robert Hutchins, "the richest boy to work his way through college."

Percy's mastery of the business world was also legendary. McNabb outbid all other offers to keep Percy at Bell & Howell. McNabb's wishes prevailed, even in death. It was his posthumously expressed desire in a letter to directors that his protégé be elevated from the board to the presidency.

At the age of 29, Percy took over a company earning half a million on sales of some $13 million in a camera market oriented toward professionals. Percy got into the mass market with a cheaper camera, driving earnings up to $13 million on sales of $25 million by the time he left 17 years later.

Percy's portfolio reportedly held more than 100,000 Bell & Howell shares worth about $5 million when he entered politics.

To avoid senatorial conflict of interest, Percy put his holdings in blind trust and now agonizes over the gloomy stock market.

Percy has known adversity and trauma. His first wife, Jeanne Valerie Dickerson, whom he had married in 1941, died in 1947 of a drug reaction following two operations for ulcerative colitis. Their 21-year-old daughter Valerie, whose identical twin, Sharon, married John D. Rockefeller IV, was the victim in 1966 of a slaying still unsolved.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower was credited with getting Percy, then a novice, into politics. Eisenhower was impressed with Percy's ability to raise funds for the party and his backing of Ike's reciprocal trade program. Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie, picked Percy to chair the 1960 Republican National Convention.

Percy bobbed and Melvin Laird picked up the gavel. Percy bounced back to win the Republican nomination to dethrone Gov. Otto Kerner, but the Democratic incumbent won the 1964 election with a 100,000-vote plurality.

Percy next decided to take the renowned liberal vote-getting Sen. Paul Douglas head-on in 1966 and lost by a margin of more than 400,000 votes.

'Engaged Girls' party Tuesday

An opportunity for brides-to-be to preview many aspects of pre-wedding planning will be afforded guests at an "Engaged Girls' party" planned at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the cafeteria at St. Elizabeth School.

The affair will be sponsored by Mrs. Joanna Spencer and Mrs. Ruth Bishop, representatives of Welcome Wagon International. Engaged girls, their attendants and mothers of the prospective bride and groom are among those invited to attend.

Highlighting the party will be a style show featuring the latest bridal creations presented by Marilyn's House of Fashion, 1331 Nineteenth St.

The affair also will feature displays of bridal photographs, china, silverware and floral arrangements.

Several sponsors in the Welcome Wagon program will give the honored guests gift certificates, some redeemable after marriage and others for personal gifts.

Additionally, each girl will receive a special package of useful information concerning social security, driver's license and other areas where name changes are required following the wedding.

Purpose of the party is to help the bride-to-be and her mother become acquainted well in advance of the wedding with the services and products offered by local firms affiliated with Welcome Wagon, the sponsors reported.

DIARY OF AN UNBORN CHILD

OCTOBER 5 — Today my life began. My parents do not know it yet. I am as small as a seed of an apple, but it is already. And I am to be a girl. I shall have blond hair and blue eyes. Just about everything is settled though, even the fact that I shall love flowers.

OCTOBER 19 — Some say that I am not a real person yet, that only my mother exists. But I am a real person, just as a small crumb of bread is yet truly bread. My mother is. And I am.

OCTOBER 25 — My heart began to beat today all by itself. From now on I shall gently beat for the rest of my life without ever stopping to rest! And after many years it will tire. It will stop, and then I shall die.

NOVEMBER 2 — I am growing a bit every day. My arms and legs are beginning to take shape. But I have to wait a long time yet before those little legs will be able to gather flowers and embrace my father.

NOVEMBER 12 — Tiny fingers are beginning to form on my hands. Funny how small they are! I shall be able to stroke my mother's hair with them. And I shall take her hair to my mouth and she will probably say, "Oh, no, no, dear..."

NOVEMBER 26 — It wasn't until today that the doctor told Mom that I am living here under her heart. Oh, how happy she must be! Are you happy, Mom?

NOVEMBER 25 — My mom and dad are probably thinking about a name for me. But they don't even know that I am a girl, they are probably saying Andy. But, I want to be called Cathy. I am getting so big already.

DECEMBER 24 — I wonder of mom hears the whispering of my heart? Some children come into the world a miracle to bring them to health. But my heart is strong and healthy. It beats so evenly — up-tup-tup... You'll have a healthy little daughter mom!

DECEMBER 28 — Today my mother killed me!
